Colony Formation Assay in Human Hepatocarcinoma Cells. Hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC) is the most common primary liver malignancy and the third most common cause of cancer deaths worldwide. Drug development for HCC is hindered due to the shortage of predictive in vitro culture models. However, colony formation in soft agar medium is the oldest and still the gold standard for in vitro assays to investigate cancer cell proliferation and colony formation. In this chapter, we describe a simple, reproducible and robust protocol for determining colony formation in HCC cells. We also describe the use of this protocol to assess the impact of drugs and signaling pathway inhibitors on colony formation.

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an information processing apparatus that stores image data and a method of controlling a storage medium.
2. Description of the Related Art As digital techniques are spreading, an opportunity for using high-quality images instead of silver halide photos taken by professional photographers is increasing. As a result, storing a huge amount of image data on a storage medium is necessary. When high-quality image data is stored on a storage medium, the image data needs to be compressed for storage, and uncompressed image data needs to be stored for printing and the like. Typically, high-quality image data is compressed by one of various compressions techniques such as JPEG compression. When JPEG compression is performed on a b7e8fdf5c8

I'm a big fan of popes, but Pope Francis has been downright unimpressive since he started and nobody wanted the job after the last guy. Is he the last pope? I checked the history of the Catholic Church, but could find nothing. Sean46 September 19, 2012 at 8:47 pm What are you talking about, the Catholic Church has been around for over two millennia. So in 2,000 year, whenever there is a pope that is the last pope. I meant how often that is the case. I'm not a big fan of popes either. But if you have no idea how to search for the answers then, you might want to get out of the house more. There's nothing like being able to search the net for answers. mike2rocks September 19, 2012 at 11:22 pm Michael - Your comment is pretty confusing. You seem to be suggesting that the last time the church did not have a pope is in 2,000 years. We can do a little number crunching here: pope 1555 to pope 2015. This is
